This is Mary L's forums - a place for information and community discussion about hair and body care at Mary L.

If you would like to participate in discussions here, you will have to acquire an account. To do so, there are two ways:

The first way to acquire an account would be to register at the salon by requesting an online account - you will be asked to provide your email address, and will then receive an email when your account is created.

The second way to acquire an account would be to utilize the "Register" link available at various locations on the site, including the main/top bar below the banner, and the login page.

Once an account is requested via registration, it will need to be first validated by the requestor via email, and then activated by a site administrator. The turnaround for activation should be between 2 minutes and 24 hours.

A registered account will allow you to post comments to existing discussion topics. If you would like to be allowed to create new topics, an email to the administrator can be submitted from inside the forums (use the "Members" link in the top bar, and the "email" button on the administrator), and if approved, permissions for creating new topics will be granted.

You can also request a personal blog, if you wish. If granted, your personal blog will be created as a forum, in which you can post new topics (entries), and other registered users can post comments to your entries.

If you have questions about operation or rules of this site, email the administrator and put "HELP" somewhere in the subject:

This forum is a collection of research that I found to be informative, useful, and even shocking. Many paragraphs are quoted and will be tagged for copy right protection.
